Life and Legacy: Portraits from the Clowes Collection

Allen Whitehill Clowes Special Exhibition Gallery

(May 4, 2019 – August 18, 2019)

Explore the fascinating life and art collection of two of the IMA's greatest benefactors, Dr. George H. A. Clowes (1877-1958) and his wife, Edith Whitehill Clowes (1885-1967). While Dr. Clowes was renowned for his role in the mass production of insulin at Eli Lilly & Company, he and his wife were also avid art collectors. Their collection, the largest part comprised of portraiture, encompassed art from all over Europe and across five centuries, ranging from 14th C. Italy to 18th C. England. The exhibition examines the many portraits and artist self-portraits that they collected, and offers a fresh look at their interesting life story, their important art collection, and the development of portraiture over the span of several hundred years.

Fashion Redefined: Miyake, Kawakubo, and Yamamoto

(April 28, 2019 – January 5, 2020)

Paul Textile and Fashion Arts Galleries

Limited to 30 students

In the 1980's Japanese designers challenged the principles of Western fashion by introducing clothing that draped and wrapped the body, concealing its contours and silhouette. Issey Miyake, Rei Kawakubo for Comme des Garçons, Yohji Yamamoto and other avant-garde Japanese fashion designers rejected the idea that women's clothing had to fit an idealized hourglass-shaped female body. Their innovative designs set new standards for shape and proportion and coined a contemporary definition of "universal beauty."

Collecting Contemporaries: Recent Acquisitions from the Koch and Wolf Collections

This exhibition highlights two of the largest gifts of modern and contemporary art made to the IMA over its 135-year history, donated by longtime supporters Kay Koch, and Joan and Walter Wolf. Sensual/Sexual/Social: The Photography of George Platt Lynes

(September 30, 2018 – February 24, 2019)

Allen Whitehill Clowes Special Exhibition Gallery

Explore the legacy of visionary American photographer George Platt Lynes through this exhibition of photographs from the collection of the Kinsey Institute, Indiana University. Lynes' visionary work catapulted him to notoriety as a New-York-based commercial fashion and ballet photographer, but resulted in his drift from the spotlight when it was revealed that he photographed male nudes as well. Lynes also turned his lens on his social circle – the artistic and literary minds of the mid-20th century – who accepted him as a gay man during a period of harsh anti-LGBT laws in America. Learn about Lynes' groundbreaking work with lighting and darkroom manipulation and his personal passion, the male nude, considered taboo and illegal in the 1930s and '40s. Please note: Select artworks in this exhibition contain nudity.

Interactive Dialogue

Closer Look Interactive Dialogue

Limited to 2 groups of 20 students (40 total)

Participants in a Closer Look session will observe, question, and think more deeply about a selected artwork in an hour-long session which will focus on a single work of art. A museum educator serves as a facilitator for each encounter to enhance interactive dialogue, and provide additional information about the art or artist if the group discussion calls for interpretation. Students are encouraged to use their own thoughts, emotions and voices to participate in this open-ended dialogue in order to develop enhanced understandings and share unique viewpoints.

VTS (Visual Thinking Strategies)

Visual Thinking Strategies (VTS) is a facilitated discussion method used to encourage careful looking, critical thinking, vocabulary development, and an understanding of multiple perspectives. The VTS tour focuses on a small number of carefully chosen works of art that cover various media, cultures and time periods. Led by a docent, visitors will hold in-depth group discussions that share ideas and explore artwork in a new way. The tour focuses on student observation and sharing and does not provide art historical information. For more information on this tour and VTS, contact the Coordinator of School and Group Services. VTS tours last 45 minutes. If the group would like to engage in a debriefing of their tour, the VTS tour lasts 60 minutes.

Gallery Tours

Nazi-Era Looted Art and Museums: Continuing the Work of the Monuments Men

Limited to 30 students, who have undertaken in-depth study of WWII

Monuments men and women were museum and cultural professionals who helped the Allied military forces safeguard the art the Nazis stole and worked to return it once World War II came to an end. Art museums the world over continue their work by conducting provenance research, or research on the history of ownership of works in their collection. Students will learn about how some European paintings in the IMA's collection are intertwined with looting during WWII and subsequent Allied efforts at restitution, and why research into the history of ownership is important in American art museums.

Creative Hoosiers

Students will learn about Indiana artists, designers, poets and writers with a tour of art by and about some renowned creative Hoosiers. Many of the artists in the IMA's collection attended the Herron School of Art for their initial training. Some of the artists remained in Indiana all of their lives; many more spent time here and then continued their training and careers elsewhere. This tour may include stops in our American, Contemporary, Design and special exhibition galleries.

Focus: Faces

Students will observe and discuss how artists throughout history have represented faces—human and animal, real and imaginary. Participants will see faces represented using a variety of techniques and in a variety of materials and discuss how faces are used to show emotion, tell stories and illustrate ideas. This tour may include portraits, faces depicted in sculpture, masks and more abstract works.

Focus: Places

Students will explore the ideas surrounding “place” including interiors, natural settings, cityscapes, and seascapes. Participants will compare and contrast how artists have explored, depicted and included the natural world in their art at different historical times and in different cultures, including viewpoint and perspective. Participants will discover that not all artistic representations of nature are realistic—that artists may take liberties with the landscape to create a more visually successful image or one that tells a stronger story.

Focus: Spaces

This tour will include two-dimensional depictions of space and will explore methods and materials of three-dimensional art from around the world, including Asia and Africa. With more recent art, the term sculpture became a label for almost any form of art activity other than painting. Participants will see traditional sculpture and also become familiar with 3-D art forms, discuss various sculptural media and techniques in the galleries, and on the museum grounds—weather permitting.
